PRINCE BISMARCK SUCCUMBS TO CANCER

Son of Iron Chancellor Died Sunday in Friedrichsruhe. His Career.

(By Associated Press.)
FRIEDRICHSRUHE, Sept. 19.—Prince Herbert Bismarck died yesterday morning at 19:15 o'clock. Death resulted from cancer of the stomach. The end was painless.

Herbert Nikolaus von Bismarck-Schonhausen, who has been called a chip of the old Bismarck block, was the eldest son of Prince Otto von Bismarck to whose title he succeeded on his father's death in 1898. He was born in Berlin, December 8, 1849, and was educated at Frankfows, Berlin and Bonn, taking his university degree at the latter. The Franco-Prussian war broke out when he wis twenty-one years old, and he saw active service, being wounded at Mars-la-Tour, and being appointed an officer on September 2, 1870. He began his political career in 1873, and was attached to the missions at Munich and Dresden, and later was secretary of legation at Berne. His father early began the training of his elucit son, for whom he had the greatest affection, to succeed himself and Herbert served as private secretary to the Chancellor from 1877 to 1881. He was one of the assistant secretaries at the great conference of European diplomatists at Berlin in 1878. In 1882 he was made counsellor of the German Legation in London, and in 1884, served in a similar capacity at the Russian court. Later in the same year he was made ambassador at The Hague, In 1885 he became Under Secretary of State in ie, In 1885 he became Under Secre-of State and Secretary of State in tary of State and Secretary of State in 1886, his diplomatic position ranking next to that of his father. His public career was one of great promise, and it was expected that he would be the successor of the Iron Chancellor when the latter's in March, 1896, cut it retirement in March, 1890, cut it When the Chancellor was dismissshort. When the Chancelor was assniss-ed no one took the matter more to heart than Hybert, who insisted on at once resigning all his offices, being unwilling to remain any longer in the service of a monarch, who, in his eyes, had been guilty of such base ingratitude as Wiliam. He had seen the latter reared, so to speak, in his father's house, drawso to speak, in his father's house, drawing his lessons of statecraft and as knowledge of men and of the world from the old Chancellor, in whose home he was treated more as a son of the family than as a prince of the blood, William frequently turning to the Chancellor for advice and consolation in his numerous bitter conflicts with his parents. The mean that William, of all other people, could turn against the statesman who had been hat William, of all other people, could urn against the statesman who had been that William, of all other people, could turn against the statesman who had been his mentor, and a sort of second father to him, desiroyed every spark of affection that Herbert may have entertained for the Kalser, and it may be doubted if the latter had a more bitter or relentless enemy than Prince Herbert Bismurck.

The son retired to his private estate, but he returned to public life in 1833, heing elected by the Conservatives to the Richstag, and being re-elected in 1898. He negotiated the treaty between Germany and England on the colonial boundary question in 1885, and presided at the Samoan Conference in Berlin in 1889. It was while he was connected with the legation in London that he carelessly fired a charge of birdshot at Sandringham which took effect in the small clothes of the Prince of Wales, but not seriously harming the future King. A dark spot in the career of Princes Carolath, whom he persuaded to abandon her husband and children for his saite and with where a treatment of the Princess Carolath, whom he persuaded to abandon her husband and children for his sake and with whom ... eloped to Venice, where, in obedience to mingled entreaty and peremptory commands of his father, he deserted her, without making any provision for her future. Her husband divogced her shortly afterward, and the princess, who had been one of the most brilliant beauties of the court of Berlin, became thereupon genealth upon the charity of her own family, the Hatzfeldts. It was expected for a time that Herbert would marry the family, the Hatzfeldts. It was expected for a time that Herbert would marry the princess after her divorce. But his fatner refused for one moment to hear of any such alliance, and it was only many years later that he wedded the Countess Marguerite Hoyos, in 1832. They had two sons and two daughters. Prince Bismarck was described as a handsome man, over six feet in height and of fine proportions, Like his father, he was irascible and short tempered. There was much talk at one time of his being appointed ambassador at Washington after his reconciliation with the Kaiser, which followed his father's death.

(GOCCHLAND C. H., VA., September
9.—Court day being the last court before the election was largely devoted to polities.

Although the docket was large, Judge White courteously surrendered the court-house to the Democratic Committee about 1 o'clock, and a large crowd gathered within the courthouse to enjoy a discussion of the issues.

Captain Lamb was detained in Richmond by an indisposition, but Mr. Jefferson Wallace, of Richmond, was on hand to represent the Democrats, and challenged Mr. Edgar Allan, Jr., the Republican congressional nominee, to a joint debate.

A lively and vigorous discussion, last-ing about two hours followed, in which Mr. Allan attacked Captain Lamb's re-cord, and Mr. Wallace stoutly defended it, Mr. Allan rend extracts from the speeches made by Mr. Wallace, when that gentleman opposed Captain Lamb for the Democratic nomination two years ago, to which Mr. Wallace retorted with a prompt wittleism wisch brought down was conducted in perfect good feeling, and the audience was orderly, though en-three-quarters of an hour, extolling Mr. Allan to the skies and criticising the ocrats sharply, Mr. Wallace in particular.

This county will give the Democratic candidates a majority, although formerly the county has been normally Republican, owing to the large negro vote. The Republican vote will be given almost solidly to Mr. Allan, as the "Ins" have but a small following here. Captain Lamb will carry the county by a large majority, as his own friends and those of Mr. Wallace are vicing with each other as to which will work the hardest.

THE NEGRO ARRESTED.

JACKSONVILLY, FLA., Sept. 19.—The fruit and vegetable growers of Florida, Georgia, Alabama and Mississippi, did not perfect a permanent organization today. A committee was appointed to draw up articles of incorporation and its report was unanimously adopted. The charter provides for the organization of a corporation to buy, sell and deal in all fruits and vegetables. Five thousand shares of common stock, with a par value of ten dollars per share and five hundred shares of preferred stock, par value $100 are to be issued. The plan is for the producers to hold the common stock while the dealers hold the preferred stock.
